British Statesmen Tour Canada

Twenty-one members of the United Kingdom's delegation to the Empire Parliamentary Association conferences in Australia in the fall who arrived at Quebec on the S.S. "Empress of Scotland." The delegation is headed by the Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson, former Secretary of State for Home Affairs and vice-chairman of the delegation. The Marquis of Salisbury who is chairman, arrived in Canada earlier and will meet the delegation in Vancouver when they will sail on the S.S. "Aorangi" for the Commonwealth. Traveling over the Canadian Pacific lines, the Parliamentarians will tour leisurely across Canada visiting most of the principal cities making a study of conditions in this Dominion. A motor trip from Banff to some of the beauty spots in the Canadian Pacific Rockies is anticipated before the party embark for the Antipodes.

The conferences in Australia will be of an informal nature, taking place in all the states of the Commonwealth. They will be met in Australia by representatives of the parliaments of the Union of South Africa, Southern Rhodesia, Malta, New Zealand and the Legislature of British India. The delegation is going to assist in the celebrations in connection with the opening of the new Australian capital, but at the same time an intensive study of conditions in that Dominion will be made. They will obtain first hand knowledge on economic problems and trade development and a study of the Dominion's affairs as a whole will be made. Conferences of a similar nature will be held every two years following an agreement reached at the 1924 South African meeting.

The members of the party from left to right are:
 Top row—E. M. O. Gough, secretary of the South African branch; Sir Frank Nelson; Sir Howard D'Elville; Rt. Hon. Ian MacPherson, K.C.; Rt. Hon.
Arthur Henderson, Chief Labor Whip; Rt. Hon. Sir
Evelyn Cecil, G.B.E.; Dr. J. H. Williams; Major Bryan Cooper, Chairman of the Irish Free State branch; Senator Sir Edward Grey Bigger, Irish Free State. Top row—F. A. Broad; A. V. Alexander; Luke
Thompson; J. B. Cooper; Sir Sydney Henn, K.B.E.; Senator Michael F. O'Hanlon, Irish Free State; W.
Mackinder; Brig-Gen. C. R. Ingham Brooke, C.M.G., D.S.O.; J. Q. Lamb; Col. the Hon. Angus MacDonnell, C.B., M.C.; Dr. T. Drummond Shiels, M.C.; Osmond Edmonds, T.D., Irish Free State.

THE DAIRYING INDUSTRY

The expansion of the dairying industry in Alberta is one of the most promising features of this province's agricultural life. Those engaged in it ought to study the report and recommendations respecting Canadian dairying in an elaborate report of the Imperial Economic Committee on Marketing and Preparing for Market of Foodstuffs in the Empire. This Imperial commission has made an expert and exhaustive study of the industry in Canada, particularly in relation to the British market. Its findings are of the highest importance to farmers and other dairymen.

The report gives a succinct history of dairy production in Canada. This has grown in value since the year of confederation from $180,000 to $300, 000,000. The influence of scientific training in agriculture, of the work of agricultural schools and demonstration farmers, of helpful legislation, and of co-operative study and operation inside the industry itself is described. The report reviews the interesting extension of dairy production in the prairie provinces but it alludes to the fact that "notwithstanding extraordinary advances in the output of butter in Western Provinces in recent years" these provinces produced only 28 per cent of Canada butter in 1924.

"The description which we have given of the position of the dairying industry of Canada," the commissioners state, "shows that well calculated efforts have been made in the last two or three generations to establish a high standard of efficiency. Very considerable results have been achieved, but there are still many farmers who lag behind. This inequality itself is more clear when we come to consider the manufacture of butter for the United Kingdom market. Experienced witnesses have told us that although the improvement of grading regulations referred to above came into operation. At the same time, they have agreed in regarding the Canadian butter sold in the United Kingdom market as being not quite
at the head of the list of butters in point of average quality. We are bound therefore, to urge that the efforts for improvement should be continued with vigor, notwithstanding
the remarkable advances which have already been achieved. Complaints
have been made in regard to Canadian packaging, but we anticipate that
with the adoption of the new regulations recently recommended this complaint will be removed."

The report ends with this significant paragraph: "In the evidence which we have taken, United Kingdom importers have emphasized the improvement which has been noticed in Canadian dairy produce since the grading
regulations referred to above came
into operation. At the same time,
they have agreed in regarding the Canadian butter sold in the United Kingdom market as being not quite
at the head of the list of butters in
point of average quality. We are bound therefore, to urge that the efforts for improvement should be continued with vigor, notwithstanding
the remarkable advances which have already been achieved. Complaints
have been made in regard to Canadian packaging, but we anticipate that
with the adoption of the new regulations recently recommended this complaint will be removed."

The First Theatre in North America

Architect's sketch of Old Fort. Inset: View of site of first French Fort commemorating the birthplace of Canadian Drama.

To commemorate the first theatrical performance on the North American continent, a simple stone cave and tablet has been placed on the site of the first French Fort at Annapolis Royal, Nova Scotia, the birthplace of Canadian literature and Drama.

Here the first American play was written and acted 320 years ago.
Although it was unlike the kind of dramatic performances one sees today, from comfortable orchestra stalls, it was from all historical accounts, a "pretty good show." It was called "Neptune's Theatre" and was staged on the waters of Annapolis Basin, the actors performing on a movable and portucious stage of canvas, and the actors themselves, men of opposite extremes in social and intellectual condition, some gentlemen of France, and others aboriginals of Nova Scotia.

The author of this unique production was "Marc Lescarbot," a French lawyer and poet, who came with Poirinecourt to Port Royal in 1606. During his first winter he was in charge of the Fort during the absence of Poirinecourt on an exploration expedition. If Lescarbot must be credited with the distinction of being the author and producer of the first North American play, he is also responsible for inaugurating a short hours day for his men, and the first experimental farm in the country. Moreover he was one of the most prominent members of the "Order of Good Cheer," an equivalent organization established by Champlain for the purpose of settling a record in the variety and excellence of food, which members washed down with a plentiful supply of rare old wines. Lescarbot was a particularly proficient in "barroving," a good party.

To add a still further "touch of gayety," as Lescarbot put it, to the reign of Poirinecourt from his voyage of discovery, Lescarbot composed an original masque called "Neptune Theatre," which was enacted in the presence of Poirinecourt aboard ship. After it was over the merry company went ashore, entered the "habitation" and home of the "Order" and the banquet began. Later Lescarbot returned to France and wrote the "Histoire de Nouvelle France" and the Old Fort fell into the hands of the British.

It is the most peaceful spot in the world now. A beautiful bronze tablet bearing the arms of France and Navarre at the top and the inscription:

"Site of the first fort or
"habitation" of Port Royal, built by the French under the Marquis de Champlain, 1606.
Attacked and partially destroyed by a British force from Virginia, 1613. Restored and occupied by Scottish Colonists, 1629. Laid waste on their retirement from the country, 1632. Home of the Order of Good Cheer, birthplace of Canadian Literature and Drama."

With a simple ceremony the tablet was unveiled recently by the Lieutenant Governor of Nova Scotia before members of the Historic Monuments and Sites Board of Canada, who were responsible for its erection, and prominent architects from all over the Dominion.
It is just one more interesting landmark at Annapolis Royal, surely the most romantic centre of Nova Scotia on the Dominion Atlantic Railway with its park and museum, and beloved of travellers.

THE BIBLE SOCIETY

The eighteenth Annual Meeting of the Lacombe Branch of the Canadian Bible Society was held on Sunday evening last in St. Andrew's United Church.

A large and interested congregation listened to an address given by Rev. H. D. Marr, B.A., the District Secretary, who spoke on the Challenge of the Gospel, and the Conquest of the Gospel.

The British and Foreign Society of which the local branch is a part, is one of the greatest factors in the world for the evangelization of all nations and peoples. Its achievements were mentioned by Mr. Marr and incidents related showing in a striking way that the Bible Society is not only the great pioneer of all Missionary Societies, but makes it possible for the churches of all denominations to do their own particular work, both at home and in foreign fields.

Last year 10,482,000 volumes of the Scriptures were published in 580 languages, 110 of these are used in Canada and 49 in Alberta.

At the close of the regular service a meeting was held for reorganization.

Mr. George Hutton the President of the local branch, presided and Mr. Jesse Fraser the Secretary, gave the report of the Branch for the past year.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year—

Mr. George Hutton, President.

Vice Presidents—All the ministers of Lacombe and the Salvation Army Officers.

BENTLEY

CARD OF THANKS

We take this opportunity to express our sincere thanks to the many friends who so kindly assisted us in our recent and bereavement.

J. H. Damron and Family,
C. F. Damron and Family,
H. C. Damron and Family.

The Sunday services at the Chapel School House seem to be meeting with general approval. A good congregation has greeted the preacher on both occasions. Arrangements are now for preaching service every Sunday until further notice at 3:30 p.m. This necessitates the Sunday School at Bentley meeting at 2 p.m.

Bentley curers have made arrangements to flood the rink and if the present weather holds good the first draw will take place about the 25th.

Mr. John Eaton had a very narrow escape from what might have been a serious accident.

On his way home from Bentley on Monday night, at a rough place in the road 4 miles south of Rimbey, the steering gear gave way and Henry Ford made a dash for the river, which was just down the grade from the road.

His truck came to a stop with just a portion of the rear end of the box above the water.

Mr. Eaton escaped with only a soaking. He was able to recover all the mail.

Miss Eileen Thorp has entered the Lacombe High School.

There has been very little hunting so far this year, the weather being unfavorable for such sport.

Mr. C. F. Damron and family have moved back into Bentley after spending the summer at Brownlow's Landing.

Mr. George Stephenson shipped cattle and sheep to Calgary on Tuesday.

Mr. J. Damron shipped a carload of hogs to Edmonton.

Mr. Jim Thompson has made arrangements to open his office over the Drug Store.

Mr. Langmaid was buried in the Bentley cemetery on Sunday, September 19th.

Mrs. S. Vanston underwent a serious operation in the Bentley Community Hospital on Sept. 21st.

On Thursday, Sept. 16th at the Parsonage in Lacombe, Mina, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. E. Garries was united in marriage to Mr. E. B. Poling.

The wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride at 5 p.m.

On Saturday afternoon, at 3 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Thomas Fleming, the young ladies of Bentley gave a miscellaneous shower for the bride.

(We had several snow storms, but this was the only shower). Many beautiful and useful gifts were received. Saturday night, after the show, a number of friends of the bride and groom entertained them for some minutes by wild noises and strange pranks.

The following circular letter has been mailed to the secretaries of the different women's organizations throughout the district.

In view of the fact that certain parties are giving a false impression as to the rates charged in the Bentley Hospital, we are asking you to read the following to your members at the next meeting of your club:

Private ward $4.00 per day
Semi Private $3.00 per day

Model 330, just out! And this newest Stevens is fully up to the traditional family standards. You never saw such a finish on a shotgun at anywhere near its price. That frame is case hardened—and polished with a finish that lasts.

Examine the stock—14 inches of selected black walnut, finely checked. Full pistol grip—solid rubber butt plate. Model 330 sure "looks as good as she shoots."

Next, the barrels—made of High-Pressure compressed steel. They have the same lasting accuracy that three generations of sportsmen have found in Stevens barrels—accuracy obtained by the special Stevens method of boring.

But no feature of the new 330 Stevens is more amazing than its price. You can pay more, a lot more, but you can't buy better shooting qualities. Ask at your dealer's, or write us for complete details.

Strange, Romantic Love Adventures of the Flapper you know

She talked on, saying things that were meaningless to Joanna, the obvious things that had to do with the beginning of a new friendship, and the prospect of a "jolly" time for the girl in a new life. A trim, lace-trimmed and white head-dressed answered Yvonne's summons and replied to her mistress's questions that Miss Manners' apartment was in order.

"I've a little bedroom and a cozy sitting room for you, not too far from my own," Yvonne explained. "I hope you will be no end comfortable."

At a finger touch a gold panel in the wall of the reception hall slid back, disclosing a tiny elevator of the kind that is automatic.

The maid followed them into the lift and pushed the buttons that sent it climbing to an upper floor. Joanna was strangely tremulous. She wanted to say bright things to the older woman who was ushering her into these new and luxurious surroundings, but her mind was in an uneasy turmoil.

"Why was everything happening as it was? So naturally, so swiftly, so smoothly? Should she trust herself to Yvonne Coutant?" She stole a glance at the woman who stood so close to her, and comprehended her extraordinary fascination, the hair that was as black as raven, the magnolia-white face contrasting sharply with the two luminous black eyes, and the lips that were full and red without the exaggerations of lip-stick contours.

The fear that vibrated through her at times with Brandon, the indubitable fear that seemed so unreasonable, gripped her for a second. Then her thoughts flashed to what Teddy Dornbush had said in the room downstairs. "A singer, or a dancer, or something like that?" What was there wrong about her? She had put on her grey tailleur and the milk coat. And her smart, grey cloche hat was from a famous Avenue shop. Did she still remind one of the silk counter? And if she did, what of it? Weren't the imitations of the silk counter all right? Certainly there had been no girl in her merry-go-round as yet, without skidding, without a fall, without causing men's faces to need consolation because of them. But, of course, Yvonne had not been serious. It was just a manner of talk; the small talk she would have to learn.

All of these things flashed through the girl's agile mind while the tiny elevator lifted her to the third floor, and the maid had slid open the narrow gridded door and stepped out, Joanna had dispersed her doubts with a determined wave of confidence. The arrangement came back into her eyes and

It was difficult for "Miss Twenty-seven" to understand, for a time, that the exquisite miniature drawing room, rose shaded and softly hung, with windows looking down upon an open garden, was to be exclusively hers. With John, through such evenings as he had consented to stay in with him, she had planned, or rather, listened to him plan, the house that he would some day build for themselves. They had endowed this dream house with many idle fancies, but in her visions there had been no such splendours as the "little" room, with its rose bedroom and canopied bed beyond the softly draped door, which Yvonne had prepared for her. And Yvonne was saying:

"She'd get on, or she'd taken an awful wallow trying."

"And you don't think that I am cut out for it?" Joanna asked. "I've cried my fool eyes out, often, because some man—some boy I liked, wouldn't stay with me. And I've had nobody to talk anything over with. Mostly people who are worth while to talk to make me feel I mean, they don't know. When I cut my hair they thought I cut off my morals, and if I go off alone on a party they think I ought to be in a barem. When they tell me I don't act like the girls of yesterday I have to say who cares a hang about yesterday when there's so many to-day and then I'm told I'm just plain bad. Once in a while I get so cut up about it that I have to have a cry."

She thought she finished lamely. She smiled a little at the fulfury of her explanations. But Yvonne displayed no amusement. She said very calmly:

been interested in me, and it is not the reason you were so willing to come to me when I invited you." A smile suddenly played at her mouth and she nodded at the girl on the dican beside her. "It is!" she insisted.

Joanna pulled back at her. "No, I don't think it is, altogether," she agreed brightly, "but that is as close as I can put it into words. You see, all my life, that is, since two been alone and making my own way, I've had to fight hard to keep up with the crowd. I've wanted things that cost money, and I've wanted things that you can't have, or enjoy, when you're alone. The things you could make a show. The best I could do was to own somebody's installations on a dress or a wrap or my shoes, and keep my eyes open for runs in my stockings. I've looked all right, and I've laughed a lot, but things have happened to make me cry, too. Again that little voice of the elder girl slipped off at a question. "What, for example?"

Joanna studied a moment, her eyes looking out into the room. "They were just such little things," she protested, "things you wouldn't understand."

"I think I would understand," Yvonne persisted.

"But you wouldn't," Joanna argued. "One like you simply would not. I've cried my fool eyes out, often, because some man—some boy I liked, wouldn't stay with me. Can Keep Wireless Conversation Secret

English Wizard of Air Has Invented New Form of Telephony

The newest wizard of the ether is J. D. Chisholm, a great nephew of George Stephenson, who has invented a secret form of wireless telephony.

He can scatter the spoken word all over Europe, but you cannot hear him unless you have one of his patent receivers in the house. He is more elusive than the Scarlet Pimpernel. He has made the ether as secret as the parliamentary ballot box.

"The wizard works in a corner of England known among the wireless technicians as the G.P.O. as 'the Chisholm Junction of the ether'."

Two 1000 aerial masts tower up above a wonderful experimental station at Birchington. He has turned a bathhouse into a power station and a garage into a broadcasting studio with artistically draped walls. There is a large deep hole in his back garden, where he has made successful tests in earth transmission over a distance of 50 miles.

In the attic of the bathhouse Mr. Chisholm displayed three patent transmitters, but he explained that the germ of the invention is the receiving set, which picks up the signals straight from the peak of the outgoing wave. The receiver automatically tunes itself in, and in addition, will pick up the ordinary broadcast bands of wave lengths.

Wireless experts and other wireless wizards have been invited to Birchington to try to catch the elusive words sent out by Mr. Chisholm. Demonstration motor cars have dashed up and down the Isle of Thanet, but none, so far, have been successful in picking up the secret broadcast.

The secret wireless station is a model of perfect behavior. It never howls, never interferes with local sets or with the shipping messages from the North Foreland. It is the house of the air, as the Scarlet Pimpernel of the air.

Many Roman Relics Found

Iron Stylus Buried 1,800 Years Is In Perfect Condition

Many relics of Roman London have been discovered in excavations for building purposes in Miles Lane, near London Bridge.

Although buried for more than 1,800 years, a five-inch long iron stylus was completely free of rust and the writing point and the crasing edge were as sharp as they could have been on the last occasion a Roman scribe used the pen on his waxed tablets.

A boxwood hair comb is in such good condition that it has the appearance of being almost newly made. The comb, to which strands of fine black hair were still adhering, measures three and three-quarter inches by three inches, and both the comb and the fine teeth are as regularly and delicately cut as those used at the present time. It was found in a machine-made article to day.

Excellent craftsmanship is revealed in the sole of a sandal—wood attached to leather and studded with hobnails similar to those used at the present time. The wood and the leather were carved to the exact shape of the wearer's toes. The upper portion of another sandal, although of very thick leather, as if intended for the hardest wear, is of an elegant pattern.

A large quantity of Samian ware (50 to 100 A.D.) has been removed, also a portion of a pipe-clay statuette probably of Venus, of the kind used by the Romans for household ornaments.

It was on this site that a portion of a wall of thick timber proved to be of the river frontage during the Roman occupation, was discovered, and precautions are being taken for the safe uncovering of the continuation of the structure.

Prince Talks Over Radio

Address At Oxford Interesting From Point of Pronunciation

It was interesting to listen to the "Prince of Wales" address at Oxford over the radio from the point of view of the pronunciation controversy. His Royal Highness pronounced the "r" in often. He says "discretion" and "acoustics," and stresses the first syllable, "laboratory," and "pursuit." In the Prince's English, "laboratory" is still an unswerving word, for he pronounced it with the accent on the lab and then with the accent on the lab.

The royal test that was best presented was the remark about the "lab" which came "with an edge like a circular saw." It was an unexpected revelation, one had imagined that prince of the blood were immune from these misadventures of lesser mortals.

Why Waste Money

Two Spandons of haughty demeanor quarrelled, and being unable to settle things, like ordinary humans they called in a doctor.

In order to perform this feat without attracting too much attention they thought it best to take a train into the country.

The first Spandon booked a return ticket, but his opponent took only a single.

"Carnegie!" exclaimed the first, come back, my friend, I am was get a return."

"I never do," answered the other quite calmly. "I always take the return half from my adversary."

Although buried for more than 1,800 years, a five-inch long iron stylus was completely free of rust and the writing point and the crasing edge were as sharp as they could have been on the last occasion a Roman scribe used the pen on his waxed tablets.

A boxwood hair comb is in such good condition that it has the appearance of being almost newly made. The comb, to which strands of fine black hair were still adhering, measures three and three-quarter inches by three inches, and both the comb and the fine teeth are as regularly and delicately cut as those used at the present time. SUCCESSFUL TWO-PIANO RECITAL

A capacity audience greeted Mrs. F. H. Reed and her daughter, Miss Brenna, assisted by Miss Roxyna Phillips, vocalist, and Miss Doris Phelps, accompanist, at the Union Church on Friday evening last on the occasion of Lacombe's first two piano recital, in aid of the Union Church Organ Fund. The church was very tastefully decorated with flowers for the occasion, and despite the inclement weather the auditorium of the church was filled to the doors.

In addition to the beautifully rendered selections on the programme, the occasion marked the first public appearance as a pianist, of Miss Brenna Reed, a pupil of her mother. This young lady who has not yet reached her sixteenth year pleased the audience immensely by her perfect rendering of the most difficult musical passages. It is the belief of many of Lacombe's musical followers that Miss Brenna will go far in her chosen field. The recital on Friday night was the first of its kind in Lacombe and represented months of studious effort on the part of Mrs. Reed and her daughter, and it is hoped that another musical treat may be given the residents of Lacombe and district in the not far distant future.

For the benefit of those unfamiliar with the numbers played by Mrs. and Miss Reed, Mrs. Reed outlined the life history of the composers and the many different forms of composition presented on the carefully selected programme.

Miss Roxyna Phillips (Edmonton), winner of the First Prize for vocalists (Mezzo Soprano) at the Alberta Musical Festival, delighted the audience with several vocal renditions, and as an encore sang "Bonny Mary of Argyll" very feelingly. The full richness and power of Miss Phillips' voice was perhaps best to best advantage in "Miriam's Song of Triumph," (Reincke). Miss Phelps who accompanied Miss Phillips is an accompanist of rare sympathy and ability and has just returned to Edmonton from Toronto where she has been studying post graduate music from one of Canada's most distinguished teachers.

AT WHAT AGE OUGHT A CHILD TO BEGIN THE STUDY OF MUSIC

Jascha Heifetz, the red seal artist, began playing the violin at three, completed the course at the Royal Music School at Vilna, Poland at the age of seven, and, after studying for Professor Leopold Auer in Petrograd, was a mature artist at the age of ten.

Professor Carl Flesch in the April "Etude" compares music study in Europe with that in America. He speaks very favorably of the chances of music in America, BUT "the study mood and plan here is handicapped by one circumstance, in the United States, a musical education is generally made secondary to general scholastic education, while in Europe, the child who is to study music as a profession is placed at an early age under the best music teachers, other education being made subservient until the music studies are finished."

"Violin technic is a peculiar thing in that it is very quickly and easily acquired in the early years while later in life no amount of study will make up for the years that have been missed. General education, on the other hand, may be acquired at any time after violin studies are finished." This article goes on to compare the study plan of a characteristic European child with that of an American child of the same circumstances, and Professor Flesch says that at the age of twelve he himself had completed both his violin and his high school studies, by means of private tutors. He says "In general, the real violin talent who is under the best teachers will have a finished technic at the age of twelve, and will usually have started at the age of six. Later there is a plenty of time for a general cultural education. Those who have had the opportunity to have social intercourse with any of the really great violin virtuosos will tell you that they found them men (or women) of broad culture and trained minds, for mark this point: "Only those who have a mind that will seek its own culture will become real artists." He goes on to say that America will never develop great artists as long as she adheres to her present method and puts music study second to school studies. He says further "Of course, one cannot develop great artists under such conditions. If it is decided that a child has unusual talent for music and that the effort shall be put forth to make an artist of him, all else must be made secondary for the time (as it is in Europe). When the early years have been devoted primarily to music, with perhaps private tutoring in a few related subjects, and when the technic is adequately trained, the young artist should make arrangements to broaden his education by private study, travel, reading, and so forth."

In closing he speaks of the value of ensemble music, and of his disappointment in the lack of orchestral in America compared with Europe. He says "Ensemble music is the backbone of musical culture and furnishes a start toward broader musical life."

A SECURE MAJORITY

The Western Producer considers that, as a result of last week's vote "the independent party still holds the balance of power." It has been anxious to have this state of things continue, not sharing the view that it is a good thing for the country for a government to have a majority in the parliament on which it can depend. But the Saskatchewan weekly's interpretation of the outcome is hardly justified.

Those who were elected as Liberal Progressives have to all intents and purposes definitely detached themselves from the group that in the last two parliaments held the balance of power er and they are sufficiently numerous along with the straight Liberals to put King in a reasonably secure position. All the indications are that the distinction between the two elements among the following will soon be forgotten. It will not count for much once Mr. Forke or another representative of the Liberal-Progressives enters the cabinet, as is now looked for.
